

EL PASO HELD UP AS EXAMPLE FOR TRENCH WAR

Michigan University Bulletin Says This City Leads the Country.

El Paso led every city in the country in the amount of money contributed to aid the million-dollar Michigan University building fund, in proportion to the number of alumni resident in the city.

The Michigan Union Bulletin of October 22 calls attention to this fact and urges other cities to take note of the work done in the Paso City.

The campaign is for the purpose of raising $1,000,000 for erecting the union building and the fund is being collected in annual installments, one-fifth of the amount pledged, payable each year. Fifty dollars entitles an alumnus to "life membership," and the El Paso committee is going to make a clean record by raising its life membership for every one of its 27 members.

A page of the four-page Bulletin is devoted to the work now in progress. The heading across the top of the page says, "Did You Notice El Paso?" Across the bottom is a line that says, "Remember El Paso and Double Your Score." The article in part says:

Sixty committees have made reports. Whatever the men get right down to brass tacks and see what's the matter.

Why, for example, should El Paso, Texas, with only 27 alumni, outstrip the rest of the United States in raising money for the union? Brother Waters, Texas committee down there on the Mexican border has turned in signed pledges for $1150, with no subscription above $25. Which means that practically every Michigan man in his city has been seen and sold a life membership.

No Michigan man with a spark of college spirit left in him will refuse to pledge $25, with five years in which to pay it. That the man has not to be seen. That's where the salesmanship comes in. See him; talk to him; appeal to his college loyalty.

That must have been the system in El Paso which succeeded so well. In the work so far reported, El Paso contributed $1150 with an alumni membership in the city of 27; Dallas with a membership of 31, contributed $1000; Houston with a membership of 60, contributed $460; San Antonio with a membership of 65, has not reported anything as yet in aid of the building fund.

Reproduction of European War Game Going on on Fort Bliss Plains.

Digging themselves in for a front of a mile and three-quarters, in trenches four and one-half feet deep and broad enough to stand in and defend, the augmented brigade of three regiments of infantry, three battalions of artillery and one regiment of cavalry, performed a military feat Tuesday morning on the mesa plains above Fort Bliss which has had no parallel in army maneuvers in the El Paso zone.

The work of digging in and inclusive of six-day maneuvers between the front line of trenches and the reserve trenches in the rear, was done in a half day's time, and the mid-day meal served to the men was served from fires that burned in the bottom of earthworks four and a half feet in depth.

Attacking Trenches.
This morning at 8 o'clock the attack on the trenches, which were held by an imaginary army plus 18 scattered officers and privates, began in earnest and the problem occupied most of the morning hours. The field of the engagement lies southeast of Fort Bliss and the trenches are so skillfully disguised that to learn of their location is even difficult to the men who are well-versed in the digging of them. The sage brush and mesa land scrubbery is used, while a 24-hour strain of any wetted sand has made the field look much the same as before spade and pick began its work in the hands of so many thousands of men.

Brown who set forth in an Oakland touring car for San Francisco on Oct. 18, in which he states that he arrived at Phoenix, Ariz., on Oct. 25, and that so far "all well." Lieut. Brown says he is having a jolly, vagabond sort of time and that his lot of the road will make all the officers sit up with envy.

New Discharge.
Priv. Charles E. Sloan, of company G, 16th Infantry, was honorably discharged during the past week. Sergt. Koenig, of company C, the 16th, was honorably discharged during the week and reenlisted.
